25 Years Anniversary Show

WOOLFF

Founder of the Bristol Drawing School and patron of the Royal West of England Academy, Carol Peace (b.1970) is an internationally collected figurative sculptor and painter who is celebrating 25 years as a practising artist with new exciting work at the Woolff Gallery. Described in a recent article as 'enduringly popular' Carol Peace originally studied sculpture at Winchester School of Art and then drawing at The Royal Drawing School. The sculptures are made in clay, which like charcoal is quick to make marks with, once finished it is cast into bronze, those fluid marks of the making are then fixed forever.

Her intensely personal work is shown and collected all over Europe as well as in Hong Kong, Singapore, United States and Canada, and she has had solo shows in The Netherlands, France, Marbella, Athens and Zurich. Alongside many public art installations and galleries throughout the UK, her large-scale work is permanently on show at Glyndebourne and at the Dorchester's country house hotel in Ascot.

For the past few years Carol's work seems to be exponentially gathering energy and she has been pushing herself more than ever before, visually, technically and conceptually. Celebrating 25 years feels like a turning point, a chance to look back, to frame and to move forward, it seems now she is finding her voice.

"My work is about the every person, the you, the me. I have learnt that in my work you see you, and I see me, and I see you." CAROL PEACE

In Carol's sculptures the 'plain' girl can be super, and she can fly. Whether she is standing on a mountain in declaration or silent, there is always a quiet strength. The sculptures are made in clay, which like charcoal is quick to make marks with, once finished it is cast into bronze or resin, those fluid marks of the making are then fixed forever.

The new 'super' portraits are a celebration inspired by heroes, the "Silence Breakers" who have inspired many to find a voice; they have spread the word that you do not need to let life just happen.

"Silently Super is for the quiet people, they shine deep gold in the shadows."
CAROL PEACE

The gallery is busy with life, as the poet John Terry wrote of Carol's work, "They are first of all, real people. They yearn but they also give. They rise, they don't fall. They strive; are eternal optimists. They look perhaps slightly disorientated, but there is no pleasure in falling, or in giving up, so they keep on. 'For us there is only the trying'".
